Happy Mother's Day

This week, on the eve of Mother's Day, I would like to take the opportunity to pay tribute all the mums out there.

After all, whatever the successes or accomplishments we go on to achieve in life, few of us would have achieved those things without the nurturing support of our mums in our early years and often into adulthood.

Through their example, they've taught us patience, perseverance and hard work. They've gently helped us through life's challenges – the scraped knees and the playground battles. They were always there for us, working tirelessly and imparting their quiet wisdom.

As EM Forster once said: 'I am sure that if the mothers of various nations could meet, there would be no more wars'.

There's no doubt - none of us would be the same people without them.

Wishing you a wonderful Mother's Day from all of us at QER
